T. N. WITTEN CALLED COMMUNITY BUILDER

Feature Speaker at Dedicatory Ceremonies Tomorrow Evening Is Recognized as a Leader.

Interest in the community celebration tomorrow evening at the Myers Theatre, at which the new street lights will be formally dedicated to the citizens of Janesville by Mayor Fether, has grown fast in all sections of this locality, as the people realize the opportunity that is afforded them of hearing a talk on the community building movement by a man who is a recognized leader in that field. T. N. Witten, of Trenton, Missouri.

Not only people in Janesville, but farmers in the outlying districts have signified their intentions of coming to the meeting tomorrow. Preparations are being made to handle a large crowd, and every man connected with the arrangements of the affair expect that the opera house will be taxed to its fullest capacity.

An incident illustrating how well Mr. Witten is acquainted with his subject and of how capable he is of expounding the various principles of community building, is told of his conversation with another man on this subject. An eminent sociologist, who has made a broad study of these identical problems and who in the academic field is recognized as a leader of equal ability with Mr. Witten in the practical field, overheard the latter's comments and was so impressed with the force and logic of Mr. Witten's remarks that he introduced himself in order to compliment him upon the thoroughness of his handling of the subject. This is what Janesville will hear tomorrow night in the form of a lecture, but one with the foresight to see the invaluable results of unifying the spirit and efforts of an entire community, of bringing about a closer association between the city man and the farmer who trades in that city, and of linking the city and the country into a homogeneous whole for the advancement of all the best interests of the community.

The Commercial club, a number of individuals and other associations in Janesville have already done much to bring about a more active co-operation between the city and the country, but this is the first time that all the people will have an opportunity of hearing what can be done and of being shown just what they can do to improve these results. Men here in Janesville who have carried on some of this work and who have been instrumental in bringing Mr. Witten to this city, predict that this is the first of a series of similar meetings in which a campaign of education will be carried to the people of the community.

D. A. R. HOLDS CHARITY MEETING YESTERDAY

The regular monthly meeting of the local chapter of the D. A. R. was held on yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. E. Matheson, on St. Lawrence avenue, with a good attendance. The program for the afternoon included the singing of a delightful group of Christmas carols by a class of little tots from the Jefferson school under the direction of Miss Erna Towne. A pleasing piano solo by Virginia Parker and one by Miss Esther Muggleton were also much enjoyed. An entertaining and instructive paper on "The First White Men in the State" was given by Miss May Rogan, which showed careful research. The afternoon was spent by the members in sewing on the baby quilts, which they furnish to the visiting nurse to help her care for the visits of the sick among her poorer patients. Six of these tiny layettes are completed, ready for their infant owners and comfortable and cunning enough for the most aristocratic of babies. The hostesses, Mrs. Matheson and Mrs. A. F. Hall, served delicious refreshments at the close of the afternoon.

CITY CLAIMS DAMAGE TO FIRE APPARATUS FROM MILWAUKEE RAILROAD

In a memorandum to the city commission yesterday, H. C. Klein, chief of the fire department, notified the officials that due to an improper street grade between the trucks of the Milwaukee R. R. car company on North River street, between No. 1 station and Wall street, damage to the extent of $75 was suffered by a ladder truck on Dec. 2, when it "side-swung" into a boxcar standing on the street. Chief Klein in his communication claimed that the planking or filling between the rails was below the grade of the highway. Two nozzles and a scaling ladder were broken. The commission referred the matter to City Attorney Charles H. Lange, who will seek a settlement with the railway company.

FIND GUSSE GUILTY OF ASSAULT CHARGE

Jury Convicts Man Made Defendant By Theodore Roehl After Four Minutes in Jury Room.

It took the jury only four minutes yesterday afternoon to declare Julius Gusse guilty of assault and battery on the person of Theodore Roehl, after a body of witnesses had occupied the stand from early morning until late yesterday afternoon, in the case which held considerable interest for everybody in the town center. Judge Maxfield fined the defendant fifteen dollars and costs, a total of $48.77. The action was brought by the state, with Roehl as the complaining witness and District Attorney Stanley G. Dunwiddie as prosecuting attorney. The abusive language action, Emma Bender versus Herman Nightengale, this case being one of the outgrowth of a barn dance brawl where Gusse and Roehl had their trouble, has not been set for trial. Court attendants believed that if Nightengale was wise he might at any time enter a plea of guilty before Judge Maxfield and receive a fine which would, it is thought, be far below what it cost Gusse to fight his case.

INSTRUCTOR DOES WONDER WITH NEW SCHOOL ORCHESTRA

At the high school this morning the recently organized orchestra under the leadership of A. W. Schroeder, instructor in the commercial department of that school, gave its first concert, an evidence to the entire school of the wonderful results that Mr. Schroeder has obtained in the short time at his disposal. He came to the high school but a couple of months ago, and since that time has undertaken to make an orchestra out of a number of pupils who have never before had any musical training or experience. He taught them how to play all the various instruments used in the orchestra and did so well that they were able to play publicly this morning after but two months of work.

The concert of the concert took that it is remarkable, for the music was of a calibre that would be a credit to many organizations of much longer duration. It is the plan to take into the regular orchestra at the high school the members of the new one as fast as they are able to handle the music played by the former.

Those who attend there are about thirty members of this latest band, nearly all of them students who two months ago knew nothing of music or of playing a musical instrument.

MAY FORM MILK PRODUCERS' ASSOCIATION AT AVALON

At a meeting to be held in the Avalon school house on Saturday afternoon at half past one, the farmers of that community will endeavor to perfect a milk producers' association for themselves, and will take up the question of a milk route and the establishment of a shipping depot at Avalon. As one Avalon farmer said this morning: "Many of the milk producers in our locality are tired of hauling milk to half past one, the farmers of that community will endeavor to perfect a milk route and the establishment of a shipping depot at Avalon. As one Avalon farmer said this morning: "Many of the milk producers in our locality are tired of hauling milk to half past one, the farmers of that community will endeavor to perfect a milk route and the establishment of a shipping depot at Avalon. It is merely a question of organization; we can care."

As yet there has been nothing definite done, but the men who are backing the movement in Avalon feel that it

TROUBLE IN SECURING SALOON CASE JURYMEN

Action of City Against Edward Bulger Delayed This Morning When Business Excuses Veniremen.

Throughout the morning and up to middle afternoon efforts were being made in municipal court to secure a jury of six to try the case of the city of Janesville versus Edward Bulger, a liquor ordinance breach allegation, on the selling of intoxicants to minors. At two o'clock this afternoon out of more than thirty jurors called there were but four who were able to serve, the others claiming the press of business just previous to the holidays as their alibi.

A large gathering was on hand this morning expecting the case to open. The same court fans, and in addition, a lot more were there this afternoon. City Attorney Charles H. Lange has four important witnesses, the youths who are said to have been in the party which, it is alleged, bought their liquor at Bulger's place. He is confident that he has a strong case against the saloonkeeper, who no doubt will suffer the loss of his license if he is convicted of the charge.

THE SCHOOLS.

Those of the readers of the Gazette who take the pains to pursue the article found in another column on the Janesville city schools will find plenty of food for thought. The needs of the school were never more pressing than at the present minute. The various grade schools are crowded, the high school is over-crowded. The need of an addition to this school, the crying need of repairs to the various grade schools, is apparent to all who have made a study of the sanitary and educational system of the Janesville schools. Each year sees new problems to meet by the school board. This board, a relic of the antiquated past, is most ineffectual in its way of doing business. It would take a dynamite cartridge to start many of them to anything like real action. Janesville needs a careful, conservative survey of what should be done in the city. It needs, furthermore, some concerted action on the part of citizens with children of school age to demand that the health of their children be safeguarded. The present system of selecting the school board, the selection of the officers, the naming of the chairman of various committees has become such a matter of mere procedure that it is laughable. The Gazette does not stand for the reckless expenditure of money, but it does stand for safe and sanitary conditions of the students. It is stated on good authority that the state authorities have called here to make a formal inspection of certain buildings they would be condemned quickly. Why wait for such an action? It can be brought about by taxpayers demanding it, and how would the present school board or the city officials look if such were the decision of the investigator.

True, the Janesville schools have been conducted at a less expense than many other schools in cities of the same size, but does that count in the long run when we must face a deficit in manhood and womanhood because of the conditions that exist? Our taxes are less than the state, but the cities in the state. This is true, but it is not a reason to be proud of. It is well enough to say what was good enough for the fathers thirty or forty years ago is good enough today, but down in your hearts you know that you would not yourself put up with the conditions that existed then in your own home in view of modern improvement. The saying is prevalent that a man takes better care of his house these days than he does of his children as regards school conditions. You may spend thousands of dollars on teachers' salaries, hire the best employed, but if you use antiquated methods, teach them in antiquated buildings under unsanitary conditions, with light, heat and ventilation of an ante-diluvian period of construction, what can you expect as results? If we want to know where to get anywhere let us have a careful survey of the schools of the city by competent authorities and then we will know what to do and how to do it. It may cost a few hundred dollars, but it is worth the cost. Not a business man today except that of the retired farmer—but hires a competent cost man, a trouble man as it were, to see where the leaks occur in the overhead expenses. They pay big salaries to these experts and they earn their money. If it is good for a business corporation why not for a civic corporation that spends the taxpayers' money? The survey plan appeals to the thinking man and should become an accomplished fact. Then we would know where to begin on this needed reformation of school conditions. It is a matter that every parent should stop and consider. That every taxpayer should appreciate the worth of it. Think it over.

A SHORTAGE OF CAPITAL.

A few years ago it was commonly said that there was an over supply of capital. Savings and other banks competed for chances to lend their money. Today there does not seem to be capital enough in the country to float all the good enterprises. In a great many places there is a scarcity of houses for people to live in. But no one seems to have the money to build enough of them. Railroads are unable to get credit for needed equipment and the farming industry is hampered by the high rates on mortgage loans. What is to become of the increased gains of farmers, food producers and manufacturers; also of the better wages received by so many skilled artisans? Will all this increment be swallowed up by higher cost of living? Will it be paid for automobiles and other luxuries? Will it go into wild cat speculation, and be gathered in by smooth promoters for investment in impossible schemes? Or will the banks and substantial enterprises get their share, so that railroads can be extended, farms improved, houses built, and manufacturing plants be established? On this depends the answer to the question whether our prosperity is to be permanent or not. If all our new money goes out as fast as it comes in, always being expended for new gratifications or for visionary projects, nothing is added to the productive power of the country. The results of a spendthrift policy are disastrous both for the individual and the nation. There must be a constant addition to capital to keep up the advances of modern science, in-

Practical Economy

Baking powders made from alum or phosphate may be bought for a trifle less than Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, which is made from cream of tartar, derived from grapes.

Alum powders are not only cheap, but they differ greatly in leavening power.

If a cheap baking powder is used for a fine cake and the cake turns out a failure there is a waste of costly materials worth more than a whole can of the cheap baking powder.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder produces the finest food, and its use, therefore, results in an actual saving.

crease of population, demands of foreign trade, and to make good the wear and tear of daily use. If these constant additions to capital are not provided, the people cannot be kept at work.

Thus the results of national extravagance are cut two ways. They deplete the individual income, and they restrict all productive enterprises and limit employment.

WORK FOR BOYS.

The problem of finding activity for Young America is one that worries parents. Theoretically they recognize that every boy should have certain regular working tasks. On the farms the boys do find these employments. But in the city, town and even village life, it is often hard to find any regular labor for them. The odd jobs of the community, the raking and mowing of lawns, care of gardens, taking out of ashes, etc., are apt to be done by the men of the family, or by laborers who make a business of these jobs.

The time of the boys is much taken up by athletic and school enterprises. Many parents hate to keep their youngsters at home sawing wood or chopping kindling, when all their mates are out playing football. The boys' time is crowded with their own sports and studies.

A boy really gains a great deal from having some little enterprises of his own. It brings him up against the hard work of the world, and teaches him that he will not always have parents and teachers running to wait on him. Parents should not permit his entire time to be engrossed in sports. It is too self-indulgent a life. They should also show him that the amount of wages he receives as a boy amounts to little. What he needs is to form regular and dependable habits. These acquired, good wages are sure to be secured later.

The proposed half nickel pieces would perhaps strike some dealers as about the right price for things they now charge one or two cents for.

Appointing investigating committees does not help the food price situation at all, but it convinces the public that something is being done.

It is claimed that if school teachers would unionize they could earn as much as a domestic servant.

SEES SUCCESS OF LICENSING OF ALL FORMS OF DAIRIES

Official Advocates Requiring A State Brand For Butter and Cheese.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 13.—That the law for the licensing of creameries, cheese and butter factories in the state is working out satisfactorily, that with the exception of who has charge of that work for the dairy and food commission. The law was enacted by the last legislature and has been the topic of much discussion since its passage during the past year. He recommends, however, that the state go one step farther and have a state brand for butter. This is a subject which will come before the legislature next month for consideration.

"The results obtained by inspection of factories since the license law became effective is nothing less than a success," said Mr. Lee in a statement. "Everywhere it can be readily seen what has been accomplished. It has not only meant the remodeling and repairing of old factories, but in a number of cases new factories have been built. It is generally conceded that the licensing law and the manner in which it has been administered marks a new epoch in the history of the dairy industry of the state."

Mr. Lee also declared that a state brand for butter and cheese is a necessary step.

"There is a great need of a state brand that can be placed upon the butter and cheese of high quality in order that the consumer may know that the product so marked indicates superior quality as compared with the product not so marked. A state brand should be used only by such factories as conform to certain rules and standards. A state brand would be one of the most effective means of raising the standard of a great deal of Wisconsin's butter that is now of fairly good quality, but at the present time not given recognition above the inferior goods that reaches the consumer."

The Highflyers

The new home of the Gerards was ablaze with light. Marjory stood by the window, looking out at the night, and listening to the violin playing under way in the driveway. Tom sat at the table, leaning his head on his hand.

"Oh, wasn't it great!" breathed Marjory, coming over to his side and setting her hand on his arm. "You poor tired boy," she continued, for Tom closed his eyes and yawned. "Didn't you have a good time?"

"Watching you dance with every man in the house while I took care of the wall flowers?" Tom's nerves were evidently on edge. "Of course, being hostess—"

"There is a vast difference between a gracious hostess and a common flirt," Marjory said, her eyes flashed a scorching denial. She looked very beautiful; her dress was all in graceful folds from her little figure and the vivid face flushed with anger as she sat looking unutterable things at Tom.

"So this is the way you intend to treat this beautiful new life with bitterness," she said after a pause. Tom drummed with his fingers on the arm of the chair and did not answer.

"Would you like to have a wife that no one liked? One that—"

"Look here, Marge," interrupted her husband, taking her chin between that, she'll say, "You acted as if you did, and you can see she still thinks so. She keeps any home she's in stirred up."

Making Hard Work of Human Relationships.

Do you recognize that woman? I do. She is one of those unhappy people who make hard work of human relationships instead of taking them simply and happily.

Perhaps I should call it a tendency rather than a type, because it is so common, almost universal.

Of course, she is an exaggeration of the tendency, but I think most of us do allow a great deal of unnecessary unhappiness to get into our lives through this channel.

She wasn't tired, just worked up. I talked a great deal of me with her, and she tried to tell me, "No," she said, "but I got all worked up. I promised I'd spend the day with my sister, and then I remembered that I'd promised a friend a long while ago that I'd try to go to a lecture with her that day. So I telephoned my sister. Well, she had made some plans and she thought I ought to give up the lecture. So I telephoned her and I told her that I was sorry. Finally I put it up to my friend, and she said it would be all right, and afterwards I found out that she was awfully busy. It's a dreadful mess. I've been almost sick over it."

Just think of it, nobody sick, no financial trouble, nothing real to make them unhappy, and yet these three women had managed to get all stirred up and unhappy.

She Almost Wished She Had No Machine.

Another woman told me that she almost wished she didn't have a machine sometimes, because it fretted her so that she should think she was not being taken to ride so much as some other.

Some people are always worrying lest other people hurt their feelings and other (a much smaller class) always worrying lest they shall hurt other people's feelings.

The sensitiveness of the first comes from self-consciousness and self-centredness; of the second, from an over-developed sympathetic imagination. The second is more forgivable, but neither is a happy state of mind.

HERE'S ONE WAY TO BEAT THE HIGH COST OF LIVING

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Dec. 13.—"Raise chickens in your back yard if you would cut the high cost of living," said Theodore Hovos, secretary of the Poultry Show which opened here today.

"The increase in the price of dressed poultry has not yet equalled that of pork or beef and it is a commodity that can be produced at home," he added. "A few fowls in the back yard, fed largely from the waste food of the house, not only produce delicious meat, but supply fresh eggs, a luxury which few can afford when they must buy them."

HARD TO GET ALONG WITH.

"Why is she so hard to get along with?" I asked someone the other day in regard to a woman who has that reputation.

"Well," he said, "she's one of those people who are always imagining that other people are thinking this or that. She won't be in the house twenty-four hours before she'll be saying, 'I know you think this or that, so-and-so is something disparaging to her or something you think she shouldn't have done. If you say you didn't think

AMERICAN SALESMAN DANCED

"THE WOODEN LEG TROT" FOR THE QUEEN OF ITALY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Roma, Dec. 13.—How an American salesman tried to sell a wooden leg to the Queen of Italy under the impression that she was a Red Cross nurse was told here today for the first time.

C. C. Swain, a breezy drummer for an artificial limb maker of Washington, D. C., had been doing his best to place an order with the hospital committee representing the Italian government just as he was on the verge of giving the gentlemen up as bad prospects in came a most charming black-eyed nurse and Charlie, feeling heartily that all over again for her benefit.

"It's all a question of getting used to it," said Swain. "See, I can spin around in mine like a top!" Swain suited the action to the word. For Swain's best sample was his own left leg.

The Red Cross nurse was intensely interested.

Swain unwound every inch of his line of talk. Over the mysterious frowns and restlessness of the committee he gave her much unsolicited information. He told her of his climb to the skyscraper dome of St. Peter's. If she didn't believe it, she could ask the guide who had seen his performance and had received his card.

Afterward he caught up a chair and danced the "grassy" beat, sliding gradually into a hesitation. He ended his dancing spree with a bit of the "lango." Apparently amazed and amused at his stunts, the black-eyed nurse made her thanks and disappeared.

The American salesman, thereupon, turned again to the committee. He met a thundering storm of wrath. "Fool! Fool!" roared the chairman. "You didn't know that was Ner Majesty, Elona Queen of Italy?"

"Holy Smoke!" sighed Swain. "I think I had a golden opportunity and used it like a nickel-plated one!"

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I saw in your column the letter of "Mr. Unknown" and several replies and disagreements. I am a young man of twenty-two and see no harm whatever in kissing girls.

"I believe that boys can be divided into three classes, those who will not kiss, those who will kiss a girl, and those who will kiss a girl because they like her."

I am of the last class, those who will kiss a girl because they like her, and those who kiss them just to be doing something.

We will discuss the last class, those who kiss a girl because they like her, and those who kiss them just to be doing something.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am troubled with a red face. I have to avoid a whole lot and the skin peels off. Nothing I do seems to affect it. If I stay inside for a week it is all right. But I cannot stay inside as I have to have an outside position.

Please give me a remedy. WM.

Skin that is rough and red should first be treated by washing with a pure face soap at bedtime and dry with a towel. Before going out into the open apply a vanishing cream to the skin and the wind will not chap it so easily.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am going with a fellow who does not go with any other girls. He is always kissing me. Do you think he loves me or does it for fun?

I should be suspicious of a man who kissed me and did not ask me to marry him. It is not right for unmarried couples to "spoon." Usually the man enjoys it for the time being, but has no intention of keeping the girl for a friend when he finds someone he likes better.

This is an example of the plan that was followed in fixing of the rates of government pay to its employees.

These classes have not changed since that day save by the creation of lower grades of pay. There were $340, or $340 per annum and employees of the government at that date as there are now.

In 1854 no clerk listed as such got under $1,200 a year. Now clerks are listed at $340.

There are higher positions today than there were in 1871 but these are comparatively few and are occupied mostly by experts. The chief increase in the number of government employees in the District in shown by the statistics to have been in the lower grades of the service.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 13.—The United States government now pays its employees $100 less a year than it did 62 years ago, Ethelbert S. Seward, chief clerk of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor, an authority upon the subject, declared today.

This decrease comes at a time when the cost of living has soared two-fold and three-fold from the levels of 1854. The salary scale of government clerks was fixed by act of Congress in 1854. Prior to this there had been no regular gradations in pay for employees.

IVORY Soap floats. It is the original floating soap. This quality gives Ivory Soap distinct advantages.

Ivory Soap always is at hand; one does not have to grope for it nor is it left in the water to waste away.

Ivory Soap always is in sight; there is no danger of injuring oneself by stepping on the cake in the bathtub.

Even if Ivory Soap were no better than other soaps its floating qualities would make it more desirable.

Household Hints

TO CLEAN STRAW MATTING.

Use a coarse cloth dipped in salt and water. The salt will prevent the matting from turning yellow.

CANDIES.

Cinnamon Balls—Very nice for holidays. One cup white sugar, one-half cup syrup, one-half tablespoon butter, one-half tablespoon water, one-half tablespoon vinegar, two drops cinnamon oil.

Drop all ingredients (except the oil) until the crack stage is reached. Add oil when removing from fire. Pour into a buttered tin and, when cool enough to handle, shape into balls.

THE TABLE.

Salmon Salad—One large can salmon, one-half pound lettuce, pinch of salt and pepper, enough to season, one-half cup mayonnaise (home-made) to mix with and a few capers. Chop salmon and one-fourth pound lettuce rather fine. Add seasoning and mayonnaise. Garnish dish with rest of lettuce and sprinkle over a few capers. This dish will serve six people and costs about 35 cents.

Economy Cake—This includes two economical ingredients used in the cake and the number of utensils used in preparing it, for you use only a mixing bowl, sift, stir, and melt on a spoon at one pan. Measure one cup each of granulated sugar and flour and two teaspoons of baking powder, sift together into mixing bowl. Add sugar cup and melt on a spoonful of butter, on this break one egg (do not beat), then fill the cup with sweet milk. Now mix with the flour and sugar and bake in moderately oven. This makes a nice loaf cake; may be iced, or eaten with a pudding sauce.

Mother's Mince-meat—Three pounds neck pieces chopped (boil before using), two pounds brown sugar, one and one-half pounds raisins, one pound currants, one-half pound orange peel chopped, one-half pound small raisins, one cup molasses, small glass fruit juice, one peck apples chopped, one teaspoon each of nutmegs, cloves, allspice and cinnamon (powdered), one-half teaspoon salt, one-half pound suet, chopped. Let entire mixture come to a boil, add one quart cider. Makes six quarts.

Fine Mince-meat—Seven pounds beef from the neck. Cook tender and chop fine. Add two pounds suet, one pound currants, one-half pound orange peel, two pounds seeded raisins, two pounds currants, one pound citron, one pound almonds blanched and chopped, one pound sugar, one cup each of ground cinnamon, nutmegs, half gallon of more of cider, grated peel of two oranges. Mix all except almonds and oranges; cook slowly till about right for puree, then cool and add almonds and oranges.

Mock Mince-meat—One peck green tomatoes chopped fine. Drain and add two pounds brown sugar, two pounds raisins (chopped), two tablespoons each of ground cloves, cinnamon and allspice, two teaspoons salt. Cook two hours, add two cups vinegar. Seal.

Baked Fish—Clean a two-pound fish. Take two cups of flour, one-half teaspoon salt and, with a little water, make a stiff dough. Roll to about one-eighth inch thickness. Place fish in dough, completely covering it so that it is securely packed (spoon dumping style). Bake forty-five minutes. Take out of oven and discard dough, which has absorbed the oil, and you will have a dry, wholesome fish which will be delicious and can be eaten by invalids or people with very delicate stomachs.

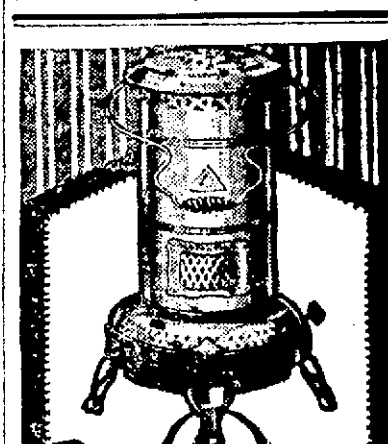

Delicate Fruitcake—One pound butter put in small stewpan; set over fire and stir into it one cup flour, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup raisins, raisins and citron; one heaping teaspoon cloves, two of cinnamon, two of nutmeg, nine eggs, one cup of blanched chopped almonds. Bake four hours in one large loaf. Have a moderate oven and try to keep it even temperature throughout the baking. These are delicious with chicken fricasse or mild or broth soup.

"K"

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

(Copyright, by McClure Publications, Inc.)

"I guess I'll stay where I am," he said. "They know me around here, and I know them. By the way, will you leave this envelope at Mrs. McKee's? Maggie Roscafeld is ironing there today. It's for her."

Max took the envelope absently.

"You'll go on here to the end of your days, working for a pittance," he objected. "Inside of ten years there'll be no general practitioners; then where will you be?"

"I'll manage somehow," said the brother placidly. "I guess there will always be a few that can pay my prices better than what you specialists ask."

Max laughed with genuine amusement.

"I dare say, if this is the way you let them pay your prices."

He held out the envelope, and the other man colored.

Very proud of Doctor Max was his brother, unselfishly proud, of his skill, of his handsome person, of his easy good manners; very humble, too, of his own knowledge and experience. If he ever suspected any lack of finer fiber in Max, he put the thought away. Probably he was too rigid himself. Max was young, a hard worker. He had a right to play hard.

He prepared his black bag for the day's calls—stethoscope, thermometer, eye-cup, bandages, case of small vials, a lump of absorbent cotton in a not overfresh towel; in the bottom, a heterogeneous collection of instruments, a roll of adhesive plaster, a bottle or two of sugar-of-milk tablets for the children, a dog collar that had belonged to a dead collie, and had got in the bag in some curious fashion and there remained.

He prepared the bag a little nervously, while Max ate. He felt that modern methods and the best usage might not have approved of the bag. On his way out he paused at the dining-room door.

"Are you going to the hospital?"

"Operating at four—wish you could come in."

"I'm afraid not, Max. I've promised Sidney Page to speak about her to you. She wants to enter the training school."

"Too young," said Max briefly.

"Why, she can't be over sixteen."

"She's eighteen."

"Well, even eighteen. Do you think any girl of that age is responsible enough to have life and death put in her hands? Besides, although I haven't noticed her lately, she used to be a pretty little thing. There is no use filling up the wards with a lot of ornaments; it keeps the internes all stowed up."

"Since when," asked Doctor Ed mildly, "have you found good looks in a girl a handicap?"

In the end they compromised. Max would see Sidney at his office. It would be better than having her run across the Street—would put things on the right footing. For, if he did have her admitted, she would have to learn at once that he was no longer "Doctor Max," that, as a matter of fact, he was now staff, and entitled to much dignity, to speech without contradiction or argument, to clean towels, and a deferential interne at his elbow.

Down the clean steps went Doctor Max that morning, a big man, almost as tall as K. Le Moyne, eager of life, strong and a bit reckless, not fine, perhaps, but not evil. He had the same zest of living as Sidney, but with this difference—the girl stood ready to give herself to life; he knew that life would come to him. All-dominating male was Doctor Max, as he stepped into his car and made his way to his office. Here were people who believed in him, from the middle-aged nurse in her prim uniform to the row of patients sitting stiffly around the walls of the waiting room. Doctor Max drew a long breath. This was the real thing—work and plenty of it, a chance to show the other men what he could do, a battle to win! No humanitarian was he, but a fighter—each day he came to his office with the same battle lust.

The office nurse had her back to him. When she turned, he faced an agreement what he could do, a battle to win! No humanitarian was he, but a fighter—each day he came to his office with the same battle lust.

She followed Miss Harrison into the consulting room. Doctor Max—not the gloved and hatted Doctor Max of the Street, but a new person, one she had never known—stood in his white office, tall, dark-eyed, dark-haired, competent, holding out his long, immaculate surgeon's hand and smiling down at her.

Men, like jewels, require a setting. A clerk on a high stool, poring over a ledger, is not unimpressive, or a cook over her stove. But place the cook on the stool, poring over the ledger! Doctor Max, who had lived all his life on the edge of Sidney's horizon, now, by the simple changing of her point of view, loomed large and magnificent. Perhaps he knew it. Certainly he stood very erect. Certainly, too, there was considerable manner in the way in which he asked Miss Harrison to go out and close the door behind her.

Sidney's heart, considering what was happening to it, behaved very well.

"For goodness' sake, Sidney," said Doctor Max, "here you are a young lady and I've never noticed it!"

This, of course, was not what he had intended to say, being stuff and all that. But Sidney, visibly palpitant, was very pretty, much prettier than the Harrison girl, bearing a tattoo with her heels in the next room.

Doctor Max, belonging to the class of man who settles his life every time he sees an attractive woman, thrust his hands into the pockets of his long white coat and surveyed her quizzically.

"Did Doctor Ed tell you?"

"Sit down. He said something about the hospital. How's your mother and Aunt Harriet?"

"Very well—that is, mother's never quite well." She was sitting forward on her chair, her wide young eyes on him. "Is that—is your nurse from the hospital here?"

"Yes. But she's not my nurse. She's a substitute."

"The uniform is so pretty." Poor Sidney! with all the things she had meant to say about a life of service, and that, although she was young, she was terribly in earnest.

"It takes a lot of plugging before one gets the uniform. Look here, Sidney; if you are going to the hospital because of the uniform, and with any idea of soothing fevered brows and all that nonsense—"

She interrupted him, deeply flushed. Indeed, no. She wanted to work. She was young and strong, and surely a pair of willing hands—that was absurd about the uniform. She had no silly ideas. There was so much to do in the world, and she wanted to help. Some people could give money, but she couldn't. She could only offer service. And, partly through earnestness and partly through excitement, she ended in a sort of nervous sob, and, going to the window, stood with her back to him.

He followed her, and, because they were old neighbors, she did not resent it when he put his hand on her shoulder.

"I don't know—of course, if you feel like that about it," he said, "we'll see what can be done. It's hard work, and a good many times it seems futile. They do, you know, in spite of all we can do. And there are many things that are worse than death—"

His voice trailed off. When he had started out in his profession, he had had some such ideal of service as this girl beside him. He sighed a little as he turned away.

"I'll speak to the superintendent about you," he said. "Perhaps you'd like me to show you around a little."

"When? Today?"

He had meant in a month, or a year. It was quite a minute before he replied:

"Yes, today, if you say. I'm operat-

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Dec. 13, 1876.—The schools will close one week from Friday.

The Milwaukee street bridge is receiving some additional repairs. Reese, the meat market man, received two large deer today.

There is an ordinance prohibiting the throwing of ashes on the streets. The marshal suggests that persons who have better luck in throwing ashes on the streets causes a nuisance.

Boys should be cautious about throwing snow balls at persons on the streets. One elderly gentleman was severely hurt (his feelings) by a wild ball which took him on the side of the head.

ing at four. How about three o'clock?" "Then we'll say at three," she said calmly, and took an orderly and unfurled departure.

She sent K. a note at noon, with word to Tillie at Mrs. McKee's to put it under her plate:

Dear Mr. Le Moyne—I am so excited I can hardly write. Doctor Wilson, the surgeon, is going to take me through the hospital this afternoon. Wish me luck—Sidney Page.

K. read it, and, perhaps because the day was hot and his butter soft and the other "meatlers" irritable with the heat, he ate little or no luncheon. Before he went out into the sun, he read the note again. To his jealous eyes came a vision of that excursion to the hospital. Sidney, all vibrant eagerness, luminous of eye, quick of bosom; and Wilson, sardonically smiling, amused and interested in spite of himself. He drew a long breath, and thrust the note into his pocket.

As he went down the Street, Wilson's car came around the corner. Le Moyne moved quietly into the shadow of the church and watched the car go by.

Dinner Stories

A man who was visiting in a down east town was charged with dragging his wife from a certain meeting and compelling her to return home with him.

The man let the story travel until he had a fair opportunity to give it a broside, and then he replied as follows:

"In the first place, I never attempted to influence my wife in her views nor her choice of a meeting. Secondly, my wife did not attend the meeting in question. In the third place, I did not attend the meeting myself. To conclude, neither my wife nor myself had any inclination to go to the meeting. Finally, I never had a wife."

The seafaring young man had written his mother an unusually affectionate letter. He was coming home, he said, and was bringing her a number of presents, among them a striped Japanese kimono. The mother got the sense of most of the letter unaided, but, finding herself unable to grapple with all her son's big words, she handed it to the district visitor for a second perusal.

"A striped Japanese kimono!" the visitor exclaimed, when she came to that part of the letter. "How nice!" "Nice!" exclaimed the perplexed

KRAUSE DETERMINED TO BEAT HENDERSON

Milwaukee Lad All Set for Go Thursday Night as Windup to Boxing Club Exhibition.

Although he has twice been beaten by Charles Henderson of Racine, K. O. Krause of Milwaukee is going after the Badger City prize fighter and tonight Thursday night at the Auditorium in the attempt to retrieve honors lost in other rings. Krause for the past month has been taking a hard workout in the park gym at Milwaukee, and reports from there this week claim him to be fit and trim to hold his own and even more.

Henderson has not been idle either, and neither is he too confident as the result of his two victories over Krause. At Racine his trainers have been putting him through enough work to keep him busy a full ten hours each day. He has a bunch of backers from Racine and several lake shore towns who are planning to witness the battle and back their favorite.

Beloit will send up a big delegation and Rockford will do the same. Seats have been placed on sale at both places. Today reports from each were that the pasteborders were finding an excellent sale. Locally similar conditions exist, according to the promoters, who hope for a big house on the opening night. A large attendance at this show will warrant more and even better battles through the remainder of the winter, although the Henderson-Krause session will be one hard to duplicate, as each bantam has both skill and a punch.

MORRIS MILLER

Billy Murray, former manager of the Phillies, who was out of baseball last season, after he had served a period with the Federal league club of Newark, is very likely to be identified with the Red Sox next season. If he is not installed as the team's manager, which position he would fill satisfactorily, he is to scout for the Boston team. He held this position with the Pittsburgh club for several years, when he was the highest-salaried scout that the game ever heard of, drawing $3,000 a year. Murray is a most capable baseball man, and any position he may hold for the new owners of the Boston Americans he will serve well, of that there is no doubt.

Knoxville's hopes of buying the Chattanooga Southern league franchise have fallen through. Subscriptions enough were obtained to form a new stock company, which has taken over the club from P. B. Andrews and Z. C. Fatten. The new club organization will be headed by Fred Shepley as president, but active charge of affairs will be in the hands of the stockholders.

SAYS STATE MILITIA WILL BE INCREASED

Madison, Wis., Dec. 13.—Adjutant General Orlando Holway announced where he went in the interest of the plan to have the Wisconsin troops released by Christmas time, that he had been given information as to the National Guard units which will be required from this state under the new army law. The troops to be required from Wisconsin are:

Six regiments of infantry, or two brigades.
One regiment and one additional squadron of cavalry, making sixteen troops.
Six batteries, or one regiment of artillery.
One battalion of engineers, composed of three companies.
One signal battalion of two companies.
Two field hospital companies.
Two ambulance companies.
The reorganization of the troops in the state will double the cavalry force and greatly increase the infantry strength, according to General Holway. Other units also will be increased. Work of reorganization will begin immediately, he said.

Largest and Oldest Trees In World Saved By U. S. With Outside Aid

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—For the first time in the history of the establishment and preservation of America's national playgrounds in the form of forest parks a national organization has come to the aid of the United States government. The story of how the Giant Forest, which contains the largest and oldest trees in the world, has been saved for the American people is told in the following bulletin:

"In the scenic heart of the Sequoia National park, the only section of the magnificent 150,000-acre playground situated in California which is at the present time inaccessible to motor-driven and horse-drawn vehicles, stands a group of trees, the sequoia washingtoniana, known as the Giant Forest, and in this forest are 670 acres of ground on which grow the loftiest and most venerable things that Nature has produced in the course of ages which have passed since the waters and the earth were separated, and the greater light was placed in the heavens to rule the day. The Sequoia National park preserve constituted a government preserve to safeguard these very trees some of which were 2,000 years old when the Christian era dawned. But it was a preservation which did not protect, for the very acres upon which grew the forest specimens were not purchased by the government but remained in the possession of private parties in California.

"Some months ago, the Department of the Interior, realizing that the constantly increasing value of timber had become a rapidly growing temptation to these owners to convert these trees into lumber, secured from Congress an appropriation for $100,000 to purchase the coveted land. When the offer was made to buy the holdings, however, it was discovered that the owners would not part with their sequoia trees except on condition that adjacent property be purchased also, the supplementary lands bringing the price up to $700,000. After bargaining from their expert appraisers that the actual market value of the timber standing on these acres amounted to $150,000, and that the price of $700,000 was, therefore, most reasonable, the department secured an option on the land for six months. "With the expiration of the option only three weeks off, and with the prospect of being able to secure the necessary additional appropriation of $200,000 from Congress during its pre-holiday session, the Department of the Interior had practically lost all hope of saving these most highly prized of all trees for the American people. In this predicament one of the officials of the department—his name has not been made public—recalled the splendid work which has been done for a number of years by the National Geographic Society in stimulating public interest in the preservation of the nation's playgrounds and in safeguarding our song birds and wild life. Why not appeal to this society, whose more than half a million members represent every state in the Union, and who would be deeply interested, individually as well as collectively, in the preservation of this forest wonderland? The suggestion was adopted and the appeal was submitted to the society board of managers.

"As was so earnestly hoped, the society's governing body immediately appreciated the exceptional opportunity which was about to be lost to the American people for all time, and realizing that never within the lifetime of a nation could Nature reproduce such trees, quickly appropriated the necessary $200,000. And thus was accomplished a unique co-operation of a great national scientific society with the national government whereby one of the country's greatest scenic resources is to be presented to the American people for their perpetual enjoyment.

"Inasmuch as the National Geographic Society has come to the aid of the federal government in this splendid achievement, the department of that branch of the national government, will ask permission of the society to erect in a prominent place in the park a suitable and permanent tablet which will set forth the society's important participation in this great project."
